

Support Case - Mrs. A

Mrs. A and her husband came from Singapore. Ten months ago Mrs. A went to Auckland hospital to deliver her baby and got an infection during the operation. She suffers ongoing lower abdominal pain due to the infection; consequently, this weakens her health. The pain also affected her daily life and her ability in looking after her baby.

On 3 December 2021, Tzu Chi volunteers visited Mrs. A at her home. The volunteer followed the Covid-19 social distancing rule; spoke with Mrs. A outside the front door. The volunteer brought Mrs. A a book of Jing-Si Aphorism, a bag of five grains powder, a bag of yam and pearl barley powder, and a good luck charm for health and safety.

While they were talking, Mrs. A remained in a squatting position all the time. She explained that she can get dizzy if she stands for too long, and may faint and fall as a result, squatting can prevent injury if she were to faint.

Mrs. A has poor appetite due to stomachache and her condition also affected sleep quality. This has impacted her mentally. Fortunately Mrs. A has a cheerful nature which keeps her going after all the suffering. The volunteer felt for Mrs. A and wished Mrs. A a well recovery.
